LEXINGTON TOO HEAVY

FOR STANFORD LADS

Local Football Team Loses Its First Game In Three Years After Game of Battles.

The Stanford High School lost the football championship of the state to the Lexington High School on Saturday afternoon. The score was 29 to 0 against Stanford. Although defeated, the local lads were far from disgraced. No game fight was ever seen on any football field than that they put up against overwhelming odds. Outweighed, man for man by at least 20 pounds, nevertheless, they repeatedly held their heavier opponents from downs, took the ball away from them only to lose it again simply by force of superior strength on the part of their adversaries.

The game was a rough one from start to finish, a number of the local lads sustaining injuries, none of them serious, however. They gave it back to the Lexington team as hard as they got however, for several of the others were forced to retire during the progress of the game.

The Lexington team made practically all of their points on the forward pass play. At backing the line for games, they found, that though much lighter, the Stanford line held like a stone wall, and it was seldom that the home team was able to do much advancing through the line. Stanford could do nothing either with the ball through their opponents' heavy line, but pulled off several large gains by end runs and working forward pass several times with good effect. Time and again one of the Stanford lads would break through the Lexington defense and stop a runner in his tracks before he could start with the ball. Thomas Coleman and Wesley Embury did useful work in this respect. And when the heavier Lexington backs came tearing through the Stanford line and seemed about to get away toward the goal, it was Harris Coleman, who could always be relied upon to stop him. Time and again this had proved his prowess. He was by far the most aggressive player on the Stanford side at both offensive and defensive work. His playing stamina has as easily the greatest football player Stanford has turned out in many years. The State University men who were gathered to witness the game, declared him a wonder for a boy, and were eager to secure him for State next year when he graduates here.

Waters handled his team with splendid generalship but could not make them beat down their heavier adversaries, who played together like clockwork.

Waters started at tackling himself, while at different stages McCarty, Anderson, Penny, McGorrick and the Hill boys did great work. The Lexington team had been trained to perfection, and their work against the big college teams had hardened them for such a grueling contest as this was. They had defeated Georgetown College and held State to a close score.

While unable patiently to cope with the team which Lexington lay reason of its larger population can put in the field, the Stanford boys are undoubtedly the class of any high school in the state outside of Lexington and Louisville, and can demonstrate it to the satisfaction of any that may have doubts of their supremacy.

A GREAT SHOW NEXT

No One Should Miss Seeing Reno, The Magician.

The Mendelssohn Quartet, the second on the list of the Lyceum Club's entertainments, delighted everyone last Friday night. No higher class musical attraction has been seen in a long time, than these four young men gave. The Redpath Lyceum bureau is certainly to be congratulated upon having them upon its list. A splendid audience heard them.

The next number in the Lyceum course is one of which should prove one of the most popular of the entire program. It is an evening with Reno, the Magician. He is the man who borrows a hat from someone in the audience and takes from it live rabbits, eggs, pinnos and other such wonderful things, makes trees grow while you are watching him out his fire and does a host of other wonderful things no one can explain.

The prices of admission to this attraction will remain at 25, 35 and 50 cents. A special rate of 25 cents will be made for the balcony for the colored people, a great many of whom will undoubtedly want to see the things this wonderful man can do.

EDGAR BROCK.

In loving remembrance of Edgar Brock, elder son of H. A. and Melissa Brock. He was born in Lincoln county August 25, 1893 and died in Nashville Tenn., July 31st 1911. His last three weeks had been spent in intense but patient suffering. He was the victim of typhoid fever, which soon absorbed the vigor of his life. All that medical skill could do was done for the patient sufferer, and loving hands tenderly ministered to him but to no avail, so he was given into the hands of a higher power, who death all things well, to await until the triumph shall come into the newness of life all the dead in Christ. He was a bright and intelligent young man liked by all who knew him and seemed the promise of a long life, but like the flower budded on earth to bloom in heaven, he was the pride of the flower budded on earth to bloom in heaven and the joy of his grief stricken parents. No human tongue could express the loss, his loving sisters and brothers feel over his sad death, also his two aged grandmothers, who are sorely grieved over his departure, for he was a comfort to many relatives and friends. His dear face is gone from home.

A voice we loved is still, a place is vacant in our home, which never can be filled.

No bitter tears had he to weep no sins to be forgiven, but closed his peaceful eyes in sleep to open them in heaven. May the heavenly voice from on high ever comfort the grief stricken parents to weep not, father and mother for me for I am in heaven, waiting for thee.

A Cousin, Stella. Hanner, Ill.

WINTER ARRIVES

Saturday Night And The Thermometer Drops 51 Degrees In A Hurry

Winter in sure enough shape arrived in this section Saturday night. The mercury went down from 71 degrees Saturday afternoon to 20 degrees in less than 24 hours. Overcasts were in demand and what few people ventured out were well wrapped up.

The storm which struck Lexington and Central Kentucky, carrying with it suffering destruction was a typical cyclone. It originated in the northwest and caused temperatures of about 20 degrees below zero in Montana and Alberta and inflicted widespread suffering upon the unprotected.

For three or four days the temperature in the west and the north-west has been below zero. On Friday windstorms sprang up all over the plain states and this developed the unusual warm wave Saturday. As the storm approached Kentucky the wind increased in velocity to over forty miles an hour and caused general damage throughout the state. Farms were demolished, trees were uprooted, and dwellings were unroofed and rocked as though an earthquake had agitated them. Considerable damage was done in the various sections of Lincoln county.

When the wind changed from the south to the west rain fell in torrents, and as the temperature dropped below freezing it changed into sleet and snow. This storm has now passed to the east and later reports show damage along the lakes and the sea coast.

POLITICAL ANNOUNCEMENTS

For Jailer.

Peyton Parrish announces his candidacy for Jailer of Lincoln county, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

For County Judge.

T. A. Rice announces his candidacy for County Judge of Lincoln county, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

The editorial page of the Courier-Journal has not yet found out there was an election last Tuesday, says the Owensboro Messenger. The Messenger says that the Democratic ticket won without a particle of assistance from the Courier-Journal, which is exactly the truth. Of the big dailies of the state the brunt of the fight from democracy was borne by the Lexington Herald and the Owensboro Messenger.

ger. The "Old Lady on the Corner" went into her corner and stayed there when Marse Henry found he could not control the state platform convention. He kept his promise to "limp in the rear" to the letter. But meanwhile the mighty host of democracy went on to glorious triumph. What it might have done had the party accepted his leadership, we are not prepared to say. The party acted wisely and well.

THAT'S THE RIGHT WAY.

Senator George E. Chamberlain, of Oregon, one of the first members of the National Democracy to declare for presidential primaries, favors the popular nomination of the next Democratic candidate for the presidency. So solid is his conviction that the time is ripe for naming national candidates by presidential primary that he expressed hope that the Democratic National Committee will seriously consider the proposition when it meets in January to determine what city is to get the Democratic convention.

"I hope," said Senator Chamberlain in an interview "the National Committee of the Democratic party, when it convenes in January, will take up the question of submitting to a popular vote in each of the states, the question of submitting to the party primary the presidential preference."

"In many of the states this will have to be done under recent statutes. In others it can be easily done with the part machinery now in use and in a few of the states it may be a little more difficult to devise a system for submitting the question to the Democratic voters. But, in every case, the National Committee ought to attempt to devise a system for having this question submitted in every state so that the voters may have a direct vote in naming the candidate for president.

"This course will probably be proposed to the Republican National Campaign Committee when it meets in Washington next month, but it goes without saying that it will be defeated because the Federal machine is opposed to giving the people the opportunity to voice their preference."

JEST SO

The animal that ex-Mayor Charles E. Woods made of himself during the campaign just closed does not look very well in harness. —Caldiz Record.

The London Echo says that if Bill Bradley had made one more speech at Ashland, Boyd county would probably have gone for McCreary by 700. It went for O'Rear by 49 when its normal republican majority is about 1000. And the Echo is a staunch republican paper.

The county board of election commissioners completed the official count of last Tuesday's election in most of the 119 counties in the state. It disclosed Warren county was carried by Judge O'Rear for Governor and close finishes in several other counties.

KNEW WHEN TO CROW

A rooster owned by John W. Poindexter is entitled to the palm as an election forecaster in the opinion of those who ought to know. Although he had reached his 18th month, which is at least a mature age for a chicken, this rooster had never been known to crow. This peculiarity was commented upon by Mr. and Mrs. Poindexter, who had reared the conclusion that the bird's vocal organs were missing. What was their surprise then, when on election day the hitherto voiceless rooster gave voice to a crow of which any chancier might be proud.

About 5 o'clock in the afternoon last Tuesday this supposed deaf and dumb rooster crowed for the first time in his life so far as known and he kept it up until 9 o'clock that night. After the first few crows Mr. Poindexter told his neighbors that there was no use waiting for any returns as McCreary was surely elected. When asked how he knew he told them about the rooster. The rooster was right. —Frankfort News-Journal.
